WOMAN'S WORLD.

MISS TITUS, THE FIRST WOMAN AD-MITTED TO THE NEW YORK BAR.

Society Women on Bicycles-The Case of Miss Hicks-Natural Philosophy and the Parasol-Equipped For Accidents-Flower Girls In Uniform.

Miss Melle Stanleyetta Titus of 131 East Eighty-second street, one of 80 applicants for admission to the bar of this state, was present yesterday morning in the general term of the supreme court when it was announced that she had successfully passed the examination held on Saturday, June 16, and that after being sworn in on Tuesday she would be entitled to practice.

The list of successful candidates was read off, and when the name of Miss Titus was reached a great cheer was sent out by the 79 young men who were candidates. It was the first time that s woman had been admitted to the bar in this department. Miss Titus flushed vividly and half rose, bowing. Then she waited until the rest of the names had been announced. After that she was surrounded by her friends with congravalations, and when she left the courtroom she was smiling happily. Miss Titus is about 28 years old, but she appears older when she talks, because she is so earnest. She is of medium height, has large dark blue eyes and light brown hair, which she brushes from her forehead. When she smiles, she looks very jolly and shows white, even teeth. When she doesn't smile, she looks terribly serious, and there is a suggestion of a frown over her brows. She has a firm mouth and a firm jaw, and she also has an argumentative way of poking her chin out when she talks earnestly. That is her main superficial indication of a legal habit of mind. Otherwise her manner is marked by extreme womanliness, almost diffidence. It strikes you that she'll keep in the background until the opportune moment, and that then she'll get to the very front row without delay. She is rather quick in her movements and decided, and her speech does not hesitate.

"What first put it into my mind to become a lawyer," Miss Titus said to a Sun reporter, "was the fact that our family had long been involved in some legal difficulties. Besides the bother there was the expense, and I determined to know some law for myself. That was my first idea. I had a good chance to carry it out then, too, because my father was ill and somebody had to sit up with him. I thought it would be a great thing to do my studying while I was sitting by his bedside at nights. So I got some lawbooks, and that's the way I began. I found law interesting, and I soon began to like it very much. After awhile I came to the conclusion that as I had started the thing I might as well go through with it, so I determined to take a regular course. I entered the woman's class at the University of graduated in April at the head of the class. In the following October I entered the junior class of the law department of the university. While in that class I won the faculty prize of $100. The next year, in the senior class, I was taken very ill with the grip and was unable to attend lectures for eight weeks. However, at examination I stood fourth in a class of 105 men and 5 women, and I received my degree of LL B. "What do I intend to do now that I'm admitted? Well, I'm going to do the first thing that comes along. I've studied real estate law a good deal, but I'm not going to confine myself to that by any-means. I've the promise of a lec-tureship in a law school, but the only part of a promise I look at is the fulfillment, so that doesn't count. My mother wouldn't like me to go into criminal law, but I think I should like it very much. I think a woman could have no better advocate or defender than a woman. "I'm a member of the Society of Friends, so of course I'm strongly opposed to capital punishment. Instead of the death penalty I should like to see solitary confinement for life, with no pardon. However, I'm neither judge nor jury. "I long to see a jury of women. Of course I'm an ardent woman suffragist. I've worked for the cause for years and shall always work for it. I believe that woman should vote and that she should be active in politics."-New York Sun.

Society Women on Bicycles, Women of fashion are taking up bicycling in earnest, and the men who are have won the right to wear the red looking after money in this world are, cross badge of the society are hastening as usual, meeting them half way. A school has been started up town which | carry with them on their travels, is patronized by women of unquestioned social standing and to which women who are not prominent socially find doctor can be summoned, and when it it impossible to get tickets. It is in a is remembered that all its possessors are big hall, the instructors are quiet and respectful, and the women are not handled familiarly, but by means of a belt and a long strap and handle.

The handle is perhaps the most curious contrivance the instructor uses. It is about 3 feet long and is attached to the belt which the pupil straps around lint, triangular and roller bandages, her waist. The instructor, by means of splints, antiseptic tablets and absorbent the handle, which is nearly as long as a cotton, with boracio acid, ipesae and cane, and by a strap attached to the ammonia, in bottles fitted in next leathhandle of the machine, can maintain the rider at an even balance and can keep her moving around in a circle by than it is to be hoped will happen." without running rapidly himself. Very low machines are used by beginners, and if the pupil is unusually stoutand the truth is a majority of the society women who are taking up wheeling are fat beyond belief-two instructors are detailed to teach the preliminary rules. It does not make any difference how fat or awkward the pupil may be, it is impossible for her to fall with a man on either side of her with the new gear which has been invented for the purpose of steadying beginners. A course of 20 lessons is prescribed, but the younger and more athletic womon usually venture out in the park after eight or ten lessons, though noveral cases are reported of women bearing famous names who are still afraid to venture forth, though they have taken several courses of instruction. The costumes are old gowns of no particular beauty. Men are not admitted to the school. -New York Sun.

The Case of Miss A. M. Bleke. The case of Miss A. M. Hicks is attracting considerable attention in western Kentucky. For 20 years she had been principal of Clinton college and had made a reputation second to none in that section. In recent years she has become wedded to the faith cure idea, which greatly displeased the trusteen They notified her at the conclusion of the term this year that she would either have to give up the school or nesse advocating her new faith. She chose to quit the college, and of her retirement and the reasons for it the Hickman Courier says: "During the commencement exercises of Clinton college a few weeks ago Miss A. M. Hicks, who has been principal of that institution for the past 20 years, tendered her resignation, and in doing so made the following remarks: 'A be-Heve in the doctrine of divine healing, by which I mean that the many promises such as "Whatsoever ye shall make in my name, that will I do," "If yo shall ask anything in my name, I will do it," mean just what they say; hence we may ask for the healing of the body on the same ground that we ask for any other blessing. It was stated to me that, if I hold these doctrines, I must either be silent with reference to them or they would be the destruction of Clinton college. I shall not willingly be the cause of the destruction of the school for which I have for 20 years lasbored to build up, and I certainly will not be silent in reference to a truth which I believe to be plainly taught in the Scriptures. While I love Chinton college as a mother loves her little child. I hold still more loyally to God and his truth. I go out from Clinton college for the sake of liberty of conscionce and freedom of speech.' She has been succeeded by Dr. K. Chandler of Boston," -Louisville Courier-Journal.

Natural Philosophy and the Perusol. A bright Washington woman has just made a discovery. For some seasons she has been in the habit in summer of carrying a parasol to keep the sunbeams from her head, and she has been wondering of late why it was that she seemed to be just as warm when abo raised her shade as when she forgot it and allowed it to remain unopened.

The other day she was walking along Pennsylvania avenue, and acting upon the impulse of her habit she raised hor parasol as soon as she emerged from a store. Then she noticed that her breathing was difficult and that her face was burning. Suddenly it dawned upon her she had noticed this before, and she set to work to reason out the cause. For a time she pondered, growing warmer with each step, until she moved in the New York in October, 1801, and was shade of a tree and anapped her parasol into its folded state. In a moface was bathed with fresh, cool air, and she was immensely relieved. It then flashed across her that she had been unconsciously imprisoning all the hot air rising from the sidewalks and asphalt pavements beneath the domelike top of her shade, which, instead of acting as a protector, as intended, was reallyserving as a hood to surround her face with the hottest atmosphere of the street. As long as she held her parasol up the air had no chance to circulate. and this was the more unendurable because she persisted in holding it quite low. So she experimented, and as a result found that she was really more comfortable when she walked with her parasol folded than when she opened it, and now she has quite tabooed that dainty article except as a means of defense against dogs and cows and other wild beasts. - Washington Star.

Equipped For Accidents. The summer girl of this season sets out on her travels with something entirely new. Her pet hammock, her tennis racket, her spoon oars and all the other pleasure paraphernalia may be stowed into the baggage wagon, but this "something new" will never be let pass from her keeping any more than her cardense or her pecketbook. It is the new black tin case of the New York Society For First Aid to the Injured. which has its offices in the United Charities building, at Fourth avenue and Twenty-second street. All the young women who have had lessons during the winter and on examination to equip themselves with the tin case to Sashes of all sorts are worn and will be a prominent item in summer dresses. Shirred hats of thin material are much liked and are trimmed with fine flowers, jet and feathers. Among the most elegant of the new trimmings are crochet passementeries in plain silk. These come in all colors and black. A pretty and effective garniture is of lace, with a fancy edge, the upper portion being of net dotted with rows of tiny beads.
